Berlin's Anger Increases

Berlin, Mar. 28.—Yugoslavia's delay in making known her aims and intentions with regard to the tripartite alliance led to a mounting tide of anger in Berlin late today.

The Government of Reichsfuehrer Hitler lodged a sharp protest in Belgrade over anti-German incidents which occurred during the coup d'etat by which King Peter ousted the ministers who had signed with the Axis.

"Drastic developments" were threatened unless King Peter assures Berlin that his new government will respect the pact signed on Tuesday in Vienna.

King Peter II Takes Oath

Belgrade, Mar. 28.—Seventeen-year-old King Peter II of Yugoslavia, who assumed charge of State affairs yesterday, took his oath as ruler of the Yugoslav nation in Belgrade Cathedral today.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of government officials and the Yugoslav patriarch. Simultaneously, it was reported that King Peter's government does not intend to repudiate the tripartite pact formally.

Bethlehem Strike Ends

Bethlehem, Mar. 28.—A four-point program evolved after an all night conference of mediators, SWOC representatives and management, ended the four-day strike at Bethlehem Steel Company early today.

The points on which settlement was reached were: 1. That all strikers be returned to their jobs without loss of seniority. 2. The company will continue to meet and deal with representatives of its employees in collective bargaining. 3. All dealings shall be without discrimination. The company will continue to deal with the SWOC, a collective bargaining agent for its members. 4. Future action with reference to the selection of an exclusive bargaining agency should await disposition of the case now pending in court.

Point Number One was one of the union's original points and the only one it won completely. The three other points were company inspired in the negotiations.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

The Rev. Julian H. King, pastor of New Britain Baptist Church, spoke to members of Warrington Farmers' Club at a supper meeting on Tuesday evening, on the value of hobbies.

Taking as the subject of his informal talk, "Something for Men and Women Who Work—A Hobby," Rev. Mr. King declared that people "play out" if they do not relax and that every individual is in need of some form of recreation. One reason for a hobby, said the clergyman, is to bring about a well-rounded life.

Answering his own question, "What is a hobby?" Rev. Mr. King said in part: "A hobby is something that helps us to do the things we enjoy. Most people think of a hobby as collecting, but it is not necessary to do that. Let us choose something that will contribute to our growth or something that will fill a vacancy in our lives. When a hobby is not a hobby is when it takes too much time and when the individual becomes so engrossed in it that he refrains from being congenial. A good hobby should be worthwhile and a good hobby makes life more complete."

Quakertown Fire Company No. 1 has received its new fire truck, an especially designed model, with a 7-foot, 4-inch body, seats on the interior, and a 40-foot aluminum ladder.

The new truck carries 150 gallons of water and can pump 200 gallons per minute.

With the issuing of two building permits for two new houses, in Doylestown, the construction of new homes took a sharp rise to the tune of $14,641 for March.

Clerk Louis Moerman, Jr., has issued to Henry H. Mininger, Souderton, a permit to construct a one-family stone dwelling on Shewell avenue, at a cost of $9,641. The new house will be built on the vacant lot between the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Moerman, Jr., and the house owned by Leonard Hampton, of Holicon.

Thomas Stringer was granted a permit to construct a one-family all-brick house and garage on the north side of Union street, on the second lot east of Shewell avenue, on the former "circus lot." The new house will cost $5,000.

Five new houses, one of which was rebuilt from a former building on Wood street, totaling to $16,000, were contracted for during January in the County Seat.

During February three new houses, totaling $13,000, continued the progress of new home construction.

Since January, ten houses, approximating a cost of $43,641 in building operations, have been started in Doylestown.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
"Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc."

Embarrassing

Washington, March 27.

THE embarrassing publicity designed to show that Justice Felix Frankfurter, besides being the leader of the New Deal majority on the Supreme Court, is also taking an exceedingly active part in many administrative affairs not even remotely connected with his judicial duties, persists without diminishing.

A LARGE part of this publicity comes from New Deal sources not friendly to Mr. Frankfurter, and if, as some of his intimates assert, it is entirely without foundation, then it must be very repulsive, indeed, to him. Certainly it is unpleasant to some of his older colleagues on the bench, who deeply believe the mere suspicion that any of its members is in contact with politicians or political affairs is derogatory to the court and detracts from the respect in which it should be held. Those who know Mr. Frankfurter best insist that he fully shares this view.

YET hardly a week goes by without a wide scattering of printed comment in which various White House appointments and acts are attributed to the Frankfurter influence. It has reached a stage now where some publications are presenting pictures of Mr. Frankfurter as one of the "behind-the-scenes" Administration manipulators. This week one weekly periodical—News Week—commenting on Secretary of the Navy Knox's "revolt" at the suggestion that Mr. Tommy Corcoran be made an assistant secretary, added that "later, other high officials likewise declined to take him on and F. D. R. refused to force the issue despite pro-Corcoran prodding from Justice Frankfurter."

Bristol Exchange Aids In Norristown Anniversary

Sixteen members of Bristol Exchange Club journeyed to Norristown last evening to attend a dinner held in celebration of the 30th anniversary of the founding of Exchange.

One hundred and sixty-four members from the Philadelphia, North Philadelphia, Germantown, Frankford, Mayfair, Newtown, New Hope, Norristown and Bristol clubs attended.

The Norristown Club acted as host for the evening at the banquet held at Bungalow Inn. The meeting was in charge of Robert Bruner, district governor of the clubs in District I, he also being a member of Norristown Club.

In the center of a room decorated with American flags was a large birthday cake, decorated with 30 candles. The members joined in the singing of patriotic and popular songs.

The speaker of the evening, a member of the Philadelphia Exchange Club, was introduced by Norman Haas, past state president of the Exchange Clubs of Pennsylvania. The speaker delivered a timely address on the subject of "The Role of Exchange in Our National Emergency," pointing out that the spirit, fellowship and social co-operation which Exchange exemplifies is what is needed for true understanding in the national and international social order.

A floor show, with a variety program, followed the address.

ROTARIANS IN EUROPE CANNOT BE SUPPRESSED

In addition to the main factory building and the power-plant structure, each one-story in height, there will be a two-story office building.

FRANCE'S NEW COIN

France is to have some nice new five-franc pieces. They will not resemble the coins which they displace. The effigy on the new coin will be that of the venerable Marshal Petain, and the motto will be "Toi, Famille, Country," instead of the historic "Liberty, Fraternity, Equality."

Perhaps that is as it should be. The tired, well-intentioned, disillusioned old soldier, Petain, is a more appropriate symbol of the France of today than any goddess wearing a liberty cap could be. And Petain's rather heavy new national motto has displaced, for the time being, the stirring cry of the French revolutionists. "Liberty, Fraternity, Equality" would be almost a grotesque motto for the France of today.

Perhaps it would be well for the French also to lay aside, for a time, their battle hymn, the Marseillaise. It means no more to Vichy than does "Liberty, Fraternity, Equality." Some less martial and less glamorous tune will do—until such time as victory is won by others who now wield the sword which a weary, uninspired France laid down. Then the France of the Marseillaise, the France of "Liberty, Fraternity, Equality" will live again—her freedom bought with the blood of allies to whom the France of 1940 was somewhat less than faithful.

DWINDLING LIQUOR IMPORTS

Already French wines and cognacs have disappeared from American liquor shelves and with the intensification of the war around the British Isles the quantity of liquor which is being imported from there is lessening. It is typical of American determination to find what is wanted that new sources of supply are being opened up. How satisfactory a substitute the new brands will prove for the familiar ones remains for the palates to decide. Or perhaps gullets is the word.

Of all foreign liquors the paramount interest centers, in Scotch. The National Association of Alcoholic Beverage Importers reports that there is still enough here to supply the normal demand for many months. But there is no place to turn for a satisfactory substitute. The trade is resigned to the fact that some liquor items will be impossible to replace after present stocks are exhausted and, of course, consumers must accept the situation with equal resignation.

British sharpshooters say they are as good as American marksmen in Indian days. And they have even more big game to shoot at.

Strait Closed to Italians in Red Sea—headline. Before long Mussolini will discover that not even any balconies are open.

A seer predicts the end of the world in August. Just the same, it would be a good idea to set a little aside for the third and fourth income tax payments.

So far as can be ascertained from this distance, no Nazi tears are being shed over strikes in American defense industries.

American shot production in February was 36,000,000 pairs. At that rate, there are not going to be any cold feet in this country.

Lover Come Back

by BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

CHAPTER THIRTY

A week of storms followed, making offshore fishing impossible. Heavy rains and hungry whales drove the ocean herring into sheltered, shallow waters. And though Chris had been driving like a madman ever since Kemp's return, the O'More catch grew ever smaller.

Kemp came often to Echo House these days; so often that Polena, no longer bothering to announce his arrival, merely waved him toward the stairs and the Captain's sitting room. He was looking older and, Sandra thought, more harassed than seemed strictly justified by a mere fish shortage so early in the season.

Sandra felt sorry for him, but she was holding herself strictly to her self-made promise not to meddle again with the business of fishing. And fishing, it seemed, was the one subject with which Kemp and every one else had become suddenly engrossed. Often, long after she had gone to bed, she could hear him and her grandfather threshing out some knotty piscatorial problem.

On one such night, unable to sleep, she crossed the hall to the lady Franklin suite to get a new novel from the guest bookcase. Polena was a crank about this suite, she thought, as she surveyed the room's exquisite order. The fresh counterpane on the bed was one of fine cream linen with a lily pattern quilted into it, the work of Sandra's great-grandmother.

Next morning, when Sandra returned the book, she was faintly surprised to find the door of the suite wide open. Inside, she noticed a number of things slightly disarranged; but most arresting of all to a woman's eye was the counterpane. It quilted lily pattern was now upside down.

Leaving everything untouched, Sandra ran down the hall to the sitting room, where she knew the Captain would be found at this hour. But her first glimpse of him through the open door drove all thought of the prowler from her mind. Alert, intent, he was facing the bay window, his arms and hands moving with the sharp, sure quickness of a master directing a crew.

Sandra moved so softly to the window that the Captain was unaware of her presence. When she saw what it was that so gripped his attention, her own heart gave an ecstatic leap.

From forward and aft on the Glory's deck, two slender, tapering spars towered against the morning sky. Men swarmed about them, adjusting turn-buckles, tightening stays. Other men were massed amidships to receive a third gleaming spar, the mainmast. Already it was swinging out from the Bates wharf—and now Sandra recognized the "radio mast" which the Forest Man had left with Jean Reynald more than a month ago.

From the very first, Reynald had planned and worked to restore the Glory to her old estate.

He was directing the work now from a point of vantage beside the poop-deck skylight, on the edge of which sat Miss Jacqueline, watching and smoking.

The winch roared. The slender mast-tip swayed, trembled, swept upward in a majestic, breath-taking arc. Then, suddenly, the winch was silent. Men, at a dozen stations, were snatching hasty turns of stays and guy-ropes, while a rumbling cheer rose from their triumphant ranks.

It was done. The Glory of the West was once more a mistress of the seas; a proud, three-masted clipper.

"The Glory—my Glory! Thanks be to God, she's a ship again." Sandra turned at the sound of her grandfather's husky voice. He didn't know she was there. He was standing very straight and proud, gazing down at his first command with a smile of ineffable tenderness. But his chin was quivering, and his lean, weathered face was wet with tears.

That morning, Polena came puffing up with a letter. "Bag of mail just came in by plane from Juneau," she panted. "Postmaster sent this right over."

"Put it on the table," The Captain was frowning over his herring records.

brick, according to tentative plans. The architects are Giffels & Vallet, Detroit, Michigan.

The erection of this defense-plant will mean extension of stainless steel fabrication, and continuation of parts manufacture at the Fleetwings factory.

Present contracts from the United States Government total $15,000,000, this figure covering largely parts for bombers and fighters. Possibly at a later date some contracts will be let to the local firm for complete planes, is the belief of Fleetwings officials.

The new plant will probably be located on the company's present plot of ground, or adjacent thereto.

Work of construction is expected to get under way within a month; with completion possibly by July or August.

"The purpose of the survey is wholly religious," states the pastor, "and will not be used in any other way. We are anxious to determine the religious cross-section of our town, and deem this plan to be best. The survey will be made by members of the church throughout the two weeks period. Three Boy Bandits Go To Institutions

All five of the boy-bandits were juveniles. They are said to have used a sawed-off shot gun and got away with $16 in change that was taken from a cash register. Four were captured a short time after the holdup by Pennsylvania Motor Police and a fifth was taken into custody at his home on Staten Island.

Frank Camuglia, 17, of 112 St. Mary's avenue, and Charles Curcio, 18, both of Rose Bank, Staten Island, were taken to the Huntington Reformatory by Sheriff William L. Stackhouse. Rocco Cavallo, 16, of 155 Fulton street, Staten Island, left the House of Detention here this morning for Kisllyn, Luzerne county, to serve a sentence. Cavallo was taken away by Deputy Sheriff Wackerman.

Their cases were all heard in juvenile court last week by President Judge Hiram H. Keller and Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

Johnstown Strike Starts

Johnstown, Mar. 28—Holding to their previous threat, CIO steel workers began a general walkout at the Cambria plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company today as balloting on employee representatives began in the giant mill.

The SWOC has protested continuance of the ERP, which they charge is a "company union," and warned earlier that when ERP balloting began they would strike.

"The men simply will not work in the plant during an ERP election, and I doubt now whether they will go back to their jobs until Monday at the earliest," James Gent, CIO regional director, declared.

Strike Settlement Fails

Milwaukee, Wis., Mar. 28—An attempt to reopen the big Allis Chalmers plant on a full production basis today failed when striking CIO unionists obeyed instructions of their leaders not to return to work, despite the Federal Government's demand that the strike be settled at once.

The company has asked the strikers to return to their jobs after William S. Knudsen and Secretary of the Navy Knox declared reopening of the plant was imperative to prevent a serious breakdown in the national defense program. The company holds $45,000,000 worth of highly important Army and Navy orders which have been tied up by the strike for ten weeks.

About 6,000 men and women milled outside the factory as the 8 a. m. deadline for the return to work came and passed. A large force of more than 400 policemen, sheriff's deputies and other authorities patrolled outside the main gates, but there were no disorders.

It just Breathes a little Deeper and Wades In!

EVER stop to figure why Nature gave you both a nose and a mouth to breathe through?

Your nose, barring colds, does all right for ordinary purposes.

But go up against some heavy exercise — and you can open up your mouth as well and increase the intake of oxygen.

Your 1941 Buick with Compound Carburetion* works something like that.

Its "nose," which is the forward one of your two thrift-size carburetors, does a grand job of supplying "breath" for your engine on normal jobs.

But when the time comes that your engine has to dig in for a tough pull or a burst of power, then your extra foot-pressure on the gas treadle opens up the "mouth" and your engine "breathes" through two carburetors.

Simple, isn't it? Yet look what happens:

Your engine always consumes gas according to the need.

By simply taking it easy when easy does it and breathing deep when the work piles up, your power plant gets as much as 10% to 15% more mileage from the same gasoline.

That, in these days, is nothing to be sneezed at.

So why don't you get the whole story from your Buick dealer?

Apple Survey Presented
Before Fruit Growers

versy as to their value. The facts presented were the results of careful records kept of costs and receipts and covered 10 of the better known commercial varieties. The acreage yielded from one to 20 acres for each variety and covered a period of five years, from 1935 to 1939 inclusive.

The ages of the trees varied from 20 to 25 years and included the following varieties: Stayman, Rome, Delicious, Grimes, Jonathan, Gano, Wealthy, Winter Banana, Smokehouse and Paragon.

The figures, the speaker said, were from fruit actually harvested and from which income was derived. In 1939 some fruit was dumped and some left on trees and ground because of lack of market, but this was not considered in the computation.

Average net costs per bushel of all the apple varieties was .63 1-3c per bushel and, in addition, Stayman, Rome and Red Delicious were placed in cold storage so those varieties cost .15 per bushel more, or .78c.

Ninety-five per cent of sales were wholesale and when costs were balanced against receipts five out of the ten varieties showed an average loss per bushel which varied from 1-3 cent for Jonathan to 16 1/2 cents for Grimes Golden.

The three other varieties which consistently showed a loss were Winter Banana, Gano and Wealthy. Two varieties near the margin were Smokehouse and Paragon. This, according to Mr. Hayman's experience and records, left only three varieties on the profit side, namely Stayman, Rome and Delicious.

"The conclusion to be reached from this study is that if each grower were to immediately eliminate all varieties that can be retained only at a loss, the problem of occasional apple surpluses would be much nearer solution."

FASHION PARADE

By Max Factor, Jr.
Famous Hollywood Make-Up Specialist
Writing for International News Service

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—From what viewpoint do you conduct the creation and inspection of your make-up operations?

The odd are that you scrutinize these on! from a full face angle. Most women make-up only from this face-on stance. And quite often their facial grooming consequently bears visible and unattractive evidence of this singleness of viewpoint.

This exclusively full-face-on mode of make-up application is an unconscious assumption that everyone who views you always does so from the same straight-on angle. Obviously, this can't be so; as you move about, there are naturally going to become apparent some various three-quarter, full profile, and reverse views.

The importance of making up with such view angles in mind can be best illustrated by citing the make-up practices of Hollywood's screen stars.

Such stellar personages as Bette Davis, Miriam Hopkins, and Lucille Ball apply their make-up correctly and attractively from a full-face-on viewpoint—exactly as most women do with their everyday make-up.

But it is at this point that the make-up application similarity between the average woman and the glamour-conscious screen actress comes to an end. When the full-face phase of her make-up creation is done, the average woman considers the job completed. The screen star, on the other hand, knows that there is much yet to be done, if the full glamour possibilities of her beautification are to be realized. Consequently, she goes on to view from all angles her, nearly completely made-up face.

Profile views of both sides of the face are the most important viewpoints, after the face-on inspection has been finished.

Study of the profile can reveal whether the arch you have created for your eyebrows is an attractive one or not, to a much greater degree than a straight-on inspection in the mirror. Also, it will quickly and fully reveal if your eyelashes have become disarranged or whether they have been supplied with too much make-up.

A profile inspection of your appearance can also disclose whether or not the powder you have applied under your chin and along your jaw line is or is not as smooth as it should be. This under-the-chin area is frequently the scene of an uneven powder application.

A profile view of yourself can show, much more clearly than a straight-on inspection, whether you have properly filled the oily sheen which is often seen in the little crevices at the side of the nostrils; whether or not the outer corners of your lipstick pattern offer a graceful and natural contour; and whether your coiffure pattern is as becoming to you as you thought it was when you originally viewed it full-face.

Check up on the back of your head, too. See how attractive a full-back view of your coiffure is, and also be sure, if the back of your neck is revealed by your hair style, to see to it that it has been made-up and powdered to a degree which makes its skin tones complementary to those of your made-up face.

one proclaimed that "Mr. Justice Frankfurter is continuing to be a close adviser to the President on many important phases of domestic and foreign policy, as well as on appointments to key governmental positions, just as he was before his appointment to the Supreme Court." Now, this sort of thing, following the very extensive publicity along similar lines of last week, tends to create a situation bordering on the tense. At least, Mr. Frankfurter's close friends are much disturbed.

SOME of these are disturbed, not so much at the idea that Mr. Frankfurter has been performing in the way outlined above as they are that he should be so widely advertised as doing so. It is calculated, they say, to create animosity toward him both on and off the bench. It is calculated further to injure him as well as the court. In the end, his admirers fear that what they call the misguided efforts of certain journalists may succeed in building up a reputation for Mr. Frankfurter as a clever gumshoe politician rather than a great jurist. Nothing, to their minds, could be more unfortunate — or more unjust.

THE mere suggestion upsets the little group of devotees who surround the justice. They assert that a great wrong is being done a good man; Mr. Frankfurter is not doing, and has not been doing—so they say — any of the things recently attributed to him. The impression of his incessant political activities has been created largely by talk of a few uninformed and unfriendly people. Just a few such can create almost any kind of impression in Washington—if they are sufficiently persistent and assertive.

AS a result, Mr. Frankfurter's friends declare, it now has become a general and very reprehensible journalistic habit to ascribe acts and activities to Mr. Frankfurter of which he has no knowledge at all. On the other hand, there are plenty in Washington who say that Mr. Frankfurter's extra-judicial role has been under- rather than overpublicized. Altogether, it is a very distressing state of affairs.

Defenders Like These Papers, Army Men Say

A SURVEY OF SOLDIERS DEFINITELY SHOWS THAT A HOMETOWN NEWSPAPER, NEXT TO A PERSONAL LETTER, MAKES A BOY IN TRAINING HAPPIER THAN ANY OTHER ONE THING. SEND YOUR SON, BROTHER OR SWEETHEART THE COURIER. WE'LL MAIL IT TO ANY CAMP FOR ONLY —

$3.00 A YEAR

Nothing makes a selective service man in camp happier than a letter from home or a home-town newspaper in the daily mail, army officials said recently after an extensive survey.

Next in order, the selective service youth likes sweets such as candy, cookies and chocolates—and chewing gum!

Officers say that on the march the gum helps keep the boys from drinking too much water and from dipping into their lunch ration.

Other offerings which bring a smile of pleasure to the enrollee include a general repertoire of utilities among which are books of stamps, flashlights, a towel now and then, toilet articles, and reading materials.

Officers say that if relatives want to be sure their addressee gets what's mailed to him, they should address the letter or package in this way: Name first, his company or battery second, his regiment third, and, lastly the name of the post office.

GRAND THEATRE

Wow! That's a perfect one-word description for "Tall, Dark and Handsome," gay new film which opened last night at the Grand Theatre. It's a picture that has laughs, excitement, romance, grand music and a top-notch cast headed by Cesar Romero, Virginia Gilmore, Milton Berle and Charlotte Greenwood.

Bristling with brilliantly funny dialogue, studded with hilarious situations, "Tall, Dark and Handsome" is gay and exciting.

Funny as it is throughout, the new film has rip-roaring drama, and a fine romance between rugged Cesar Romero and lovely Virginia Gilmore, newcomer who appears to be going places fast on the screen. With emphasis on the unexpected, "Tall, Dark and Handsome" is a real entertainment package.

Things start happening with the rapidity of Tommy-gun fire when the dapper, big-shot gangster, Cesar Romero (who hasn't the heart to kill), is attracted to comely Virginia Gilmore, a department store nursemaid.

This is the first motion picture ever to be made using not only a C. C. C. Camp background but actually using a number of the boys at the camp in the picture.

SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

(Nothing is more stimulating to man, woman, or child, than new Easter finery. Go shopping, if it's only for new gloves! Our canny expert shopper prepares your way.)

A handbag for every costume! It's really possible when a reliable shop like Snellenburg's prides itself upon showing the best bags in Philadelphia for exactly $1. These bags are a permanent feature of the first floor Bag Department, but the new Easter group astounds even me. Many styles. All the latest. Black, luggage, colors. At long gaze these bags might be five dollar value. At close-up they're still in the $2 to $3 class. Two nice tables for choosing. Various patent and leather effects. All well lined and finished.

She'll simply die if she doesn't have an Easter coat! Remember how it was when you wore seven to twelve? $8.95 will buy her a darling in Snellenburg's 2nd

d. Girls' Dept. I looked 'em over. Several fine styles. Nice wool crepes, snappy tweeds, some plaids. See the double-breasted navy with excellent pearl buttons and removable white collar. Back nicely shaped, too—something youngsters appreciate. Good, pretty linings. This department can always be depended on for value. Look around.

New fairy jewelry for now and summer! Just out in time for Easter are these truly lovely Snellenburg "Rock Garden" necklaces and bracelets. The charming things are so named because composed of innumerable simulated blossoms in a new, magically light, waxen plastic. Colors are heavenly. Among them one can find delicate hues for all ensemble.

I don't know of any more delightful Easter gifts than these would make, nor a more "fitting" touch for one's own self. 95c to $3.95. (Jewelry Dept.)

Have you visited Snellenburg's 2nd fl. "Suit Shop"? Nothing but suits, all sizes, from junior misses' through misses' to women's. Prices range from $16.95 to $49.95, and, really, there are no better styles on Fifth Avenue. Look especially at some misses' size suits at $16.95. Really grand two-piece Shetlands and twills in pastels, navies, blacks, and what wish you? Checks, plaids, coverts, etc. See the new shoulder treatment. Some with shirred backs. All newest lines. Many with longer jackets, some with 12-pleat skirts.

Mothers, don't make last year's hat do! Easterize as much as the girls if you would stay young. Snellenburg's 2nd fl. Millinery Dept. has a constantly changing group of unusually chic hats for matrons, some large head sizes, at $4.75 to $5.75. Smart black hats are current, some relieved by white or bright colored flowers for the joyous Easter touch. Bretons and sailors are flattering. There are, too, styles for women wishing the season's latest but who insist upon more hat!

The 3rd fl. Auditorium at Snellenburg's store is constantly springing surprises on delighted customers. For March 31st, April 1st and 2nd, the Auditorium has planned a "Behind the Looking Glass" event to assist us in discovering our own personalities. Authorities in their lines will help analyze our voices, postures, handwriting, hair styles, make-up, charm, dress lines, etc. Hours will be 10:30 to 12:30 and 1:30 to 4:30. Interesting prizes given!

It's amazing how many girls are buying spring formals even now. Probably selecting in advance for after-Easter goings-on. Certainly now is the time to search among the fresh collection which Snellenburg's "College Corner" (2nd fl.) is featuring at—credibly—$6.95. Sizes from 9 to 15, but the styles vary from very young to lines which the smaller woman can wear gracefully. Do see the pastel taffeta prints with hoops, the sophisticated jerseys. Most models have a $10 to $15 look.

Now we can have the American Fashion girdles and foundations designed for Hollywood stars. The 2nd fl. Corset Dept. of Snellenburg's store takes pride in rejuvenating and restoring figures, with these swank garments, known as "Smoothies". The garments can be had in sizes 25 to 48, and they cost from $5 to $12.50. There's a different "Smoothie" for each figure type, tall, short, wide and otherwise. Take time for a careful fitting. Be good to yourself! Have an Easter figure. (Exclusive with this shop.)

Cheery shopping for your money's worth, and more, at this shop of high values! Mention my column to the shop folks. So? F. C. (Herself!)

THIRTEEN GRAPPLERS TO MEET TONIGHT AT ARENA

TRENTON, N. J., Mar. 28—A full evening of wrestling entertainment is on tap for the mat faithful tonight when 13 grapplers will collide in six matches. Heading the six-bout card is the greatest handicap bout ever attempted here. It will pit the mastadonic Martin (Blimp) Levy, 640-pound behemoth, against both the Swedish Angel, ugliest wrestler in the world, and Bobby Bruns, the handsome idol of local fandom.

Martin will be making his third appearance at the Arena and the handicap match will be the supreme test of his ability. In his first bout he "took" the powerful Benny Rosen in two minutes in a powerful display of strength and invulnerability. Last Friday, the tremendous man entered the free-for-all against four opponents who had previously arranged to gang up on him. Despite his great bulk, the "Blimp" pranced around the ring with the agility of a mere 250-pounder and withstood the combined efforts of the quartet. One after the other they succumbed. It was an amazing display of strength and the fans had no doubt of the havoc that Martin can wreak in the heavyweight ranks.

However, he is up against an entirely different proposition this week. Bruns and the Swedish Angel are two of the top-flight grapplers of the current wrestling season. Neither man has been pinned here and they are going to do everything in their power to stop the ponderous Levy.

Bruns handled Jack Claybourne, the classy South African, his first Arena defeat, and the Swedish cherub came through with a highly unpopular win over Hans Schwarz, the handsome Brooklyn Iceman.

Claybourne meets Felix Slovickowski in the semi-feature. Jesse Appalo will tangle with Schwarz and the eccentric Count Carl Von Zuppe faces Al Norcus. The rugged Italian Angel faces hard-cracking Rufus Jones and Mike Haller, Scranton coal miner, and Benny Rosen, the Jewish giant, open the card at 8:30 p. m.

PRIZES OFFERED FOR LARGEST FISH CAUGHT

NEW HOPE, Mar. 28—Prizes are to be given by New Hope Fish, Game and Forest Protective Association to the sportsmen who catch the largest fish of any species this year, according to announcement made by officials of the association this week.

Six hundred legal size brown trout have been placed in Ingham Run Creek, the sportsmen have been informed.

Reports of several other committees featured this week's meeting, which was attended by 28 members and seven guests and which was in charge of the president, George H. Ely. The association decided to set aside a specified sum of money for placing food on plots for game.

The game committee announced a fairly large distribution of pheasants had been made in this area on March 19th, and the forestry committee stated that 250 willow shoots will be planted along the Ingham Run creek during the next two weeks.

During the evening five new members were gained. They included Roland Linberg and Ernest Vogtlander, of this place; Louis M. Haldeman and Dr. Bradford G. Green, Buckingham, and Harry Tonnigues, Philadelphia.

All members were urged to attend the meeting of the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, which will be held in Doylestown on Monday evening, April 7th, at which time Charles A. French, of the State Fish Commission, will give a talk. The members also were asked to give their financial support to the Bridge Valley dam project, near Hartsville.

F. A. Waring, of this place, gave an interesting talk.

Police To Question Man Found in Car

In an unconscious condition after being taken out of his automobile on the old Lackawanna Trail near Danboro, where the car crashed into a tree.

Wieand is now on a 2-year parole from the Bucks County Court. He pleaded guilty on September 17 before President Judge Hiram H. Keller to trying to run down a former sweetheart with his automobile. Prison sentence was suspended on condition that Wieand pay a fine of $100 and costs and surrender his driver's license for one year. He was placed on probation for two years and warned that if he misbehaved again he would be brought back to court and sentenced.

At the time Judge Keller sentenced Wieand, he told the defendant that he was "a lucky man" because he narrowly escaped 3 years in the penitentiary and a $2,000 fine.

"In fact, if the Grand Jury had found a true bill against you for assault and battery with intent to kill you might have gotten 7 years in the 'pen' and a $2,000 fine," Judge Keller told Wieand last September.

Wieand admitted he deliberately struck Miss Eleanor Haring, of Curly Hill, with his automobile when she refused to get in his car and ride with him one evening while she was on her way home from work. The girl was painfully injured.

"I didn't exactly do it deliberately," Wieand told Judge Keller. "I just wanted to scare the girl. I guess I lost my temper."

Wieand's wrecked car was found about 12:45 Tuesday midnight less than three miles from the home of Miss

SURPRISE PACKAGE - - By Jack Sords

Haring, Daniel Gross and Ray Martin-dell, Danboro, heard the Wieand car crash into the tree and took Wieand to the Doylestown, Emergency Hospital.

Wieand's condition yesterday was such that he could not be questioned by the Motor Police. This morning at the hospital it was reported that Wieand was much better and could be questioned.

Bucks County Probation Officer Horace E. Gwinner will also question Wieand.

Police are also investigating a report that a sawed-off shot gun was found in the car in which Wieand was injured.

Wieand, who has been working in Quakertown, is soon to be called for selective service, his draft number being in the next group.

German Bombs Will Not Break British Morale months have a two-fold objective: to pound away at enemy military and industrial objectives all along the great arc from Norway to Brittany and deep into Germany, and to narrow and if possible eliminate the numerical gap between the rival air forces to the point where Britain can confidently undertake a big continental land offensive.

German air strategy for this year, as pictured in London from reliable information gathered mainly from neutral sources, will be to throw in almost everything Germany has in raids on Britain, designed to soften up the morale of the civilian population, to snarl war production, and perhaps pave the way for an invasion attempt.

Already the world is witnessing the carrying out of part of this plan in the fierce German raids on strategic British ports and industrial centers and in the renewed heavy raids on London and other population centers.

The steadily increasing British offensive action in the air, in which hordes of planes have roared across the channel to attack invasion ports, airdromes, and certain industrial objectives in recent months, has acted as a fine tonic on the much-bombed British civilians. Premier Churchill, Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair, and other British leaders have promised the people that more and heavier blows will be struck at Germany. By and large, the British people are itching to see the RAF deal out the same medicine that the British have had to take in the past seven months.

But it is a known fact that the RAF is predominantly a fighter force, and is deficient in bombers—particularly the long-range warcraft capable of flying the heavy distances involved between England and Central and Eastern Germany and carrying a considerable bomb load.

It is by now no longer a secret that British raids on Central Germany, particularly on Berlin, have been carried out with only small forces of bombers.

Neutral correspondents in London have sometimes been astonished at the meagerness of the number of machines used in some of these raids, bearing in mind the hordes of bombers the Germans have sent over England.

But more and more heavy bombers are being turned out in the British plane factories; there is every indication that American bombers of huge size, great range, and bomb capacity are now reaching Britain in considerable numbers. Leading RAF personnel with whom the writer has talked in recent weeks are certain the RAF shortly will be striking very hard at Germany and using very heavy formations of bombers. The confidence of Britain's RAF is one of the most encouraging signs in the England of today.

And as one who experienced nearly 500 air raid alerts in the British capital and elsewhere and who has seen virtually every German bombing of London since the first German bomb dropped on the metropolis the night of August 15 last, the writer holds the opinion that British civilian morale remains extremely high and will be able to face up to the new blows from the air anticipated this year.

Destruction already has been heavy, particularly in certain areas of London. But life still goes on, sometimes surprisingly reminiscent of peace-time, amid the great ugly scars left by flames and explosives.

With an official casualty roll of 23,960 civilians killed and 33,636 injured in air raids from the beginning of September until the end of February, with thousands of homes blasted into tangled debris, it is hardly surprising that the changes in the Londoner himself have been many.

At the beginning of 1940 he was apathetically regarding the "phony war" across the channel, grumbling about the black-out and food rationing. Then there came the anxiety of the collapse of France and the British retreat through Dunkirk. In September there came the storm of high explosives and fire bombs from the air, but the Londoner still managed to maintain a stolid front which concealed horror and something not far from despair.

The terrifying fire raid of December 29, with its unforgettable scenes of heroism and tragedy, stunned him temporarily and brought forth for the first time a demand for revenge.

But month by month the Londoner has grown gradually more hardened, competent and confident about these air raids. Today he is heartily sick of the out-worn phrase "London can take it" and is likely to get into a towering rage if complimented on his courage.

There is a sign on the door of a certain room in the War Office in London which reads: "We are not interested in your air raid experiences. If you think we are it will cost you sixpence for our Spitfire fund."

That about sums up the feeling of the average Londoner of today.

Classed and deliver the goods.
